NEW HEAD FOR U.S. TREASURY IS SUGGESTED

William H. Woodin Should Quickly Resign, Robinson of Indiana Tells Senate

Borah of Idaho Of Same Opinion

Both Criticize Woodin Because of Dealings With J. P. Morgan Firm

Washington, May 25.—Senator Robinson, Republican, Indiana, said in the United States Senate today that the "usefulness" of William H. Woodin "as Secretary of the Treasury has ended" as a result of testimony linking his name with a stock offering of the J. P. Morgan banking house.

The Indiana, in a speech assailing the action of the United States in agreeing to consult with other nations in the event of a war threat, also asked if Norman H. Davis, this country's representative at Geneva, could "be representing the house of Morgan over there."

Davis was mentioned in testimony before the Senate banking committee as having obtained a loan from the banking house.

CONFIDENCE NEEDED

"Mr. Woodin is occupying an enviable position," Robinson said, "with vast power that calls for the confidence of the people behind him. He has lost that confidence. His usefulness as Secretary of the Treasury has ended."

"Davis" Robinson went on, "should be brought back from Europe because the American people have lost confidence in him and he should be recalled."

BORAH'S STATEMENT

Senator Borah, Idaho Republican, said in the following statement to newspaper men: "I think the American people, in these times when such tremendous powers are being exercised by the Secretary of the Treasury, are entitled to a Secretary who, like Caesar's wife, should be above suspicion. At present, confidence is almost as important as ability."

"I think that statement speaks for itself," he said when asked if he felt Secretary Woodin should resign.

BEER PUZZLE FOR HOLIDAYERS

Associated Press

Bellingham, Wash., May 25.—Bellingham, 2.2 per cent beer ordinance proved a puzzle to Canadian visitors here Wednesday, Empire Day. Police officers encountered various groups of visitors on the north side of downtown streets openly drinking the beer from bottles.

Informing them they were violating the city ordinance, the Canadians apologized and said they had been told by the dealer they could not drink the beer within the premises and believed they were within the law in drinking outside the store. The ordinance prohibits public drinking.

The light downfall of rain yesterday will, if the ensuing weather is satisfactory, prove most beneficial to strawberry and other berry crops now under cultivation.

District berry growers are now preparing for harvesting their crops and are optimistic over the anticipated results, despite the fact that the crops will not be as large this year as last year, owing to winter killing of plants.

Unless hot dry winds succeed the rainfall, the crops are expected to be satisfactory from the viewpoints of both the growers and the market men. Weather of the last two weeks has been ideal for growing purposes.

Strawberries will be on the local market about the middle of next month, according to a statement from a leading Keating grower this morning. Prairie shipping is expected to start soon after the first picking.

The accident happened about a mile east of here when a front wheel of the car collided with a back wheel of passing auto.

Down under ten feet of water, Helen McParlon, daughter of George McParlon, forestry supervisor, had presence of mind enough to work open the door of the sedan and lead the way in swimming to the surface and the shore, followed by Elmer Thompson and Roy Clark.

Miss Donaldson, also an excellent swimmer, had apparently tried to escape through the broken windshield, and was caught until overcome. Clark may lose an eye, but neither of the other survivors was seriously hurt.

It was several hours before the car was recovered.

Framingham, Mass., May 25.—Three children, who were believed to have been fatally burned in a fire that swept their home this morning were found, on an autopsy, to have died as a result of beatings they had received before an incendiary fire, officials announced.

The children were Irene, Eugene and Chester Dyckeski, ages eleven, five and seven years, respectively. Their mother, Mrs. Nellie Dyckeski, and one other child, Paul, aged eight, were taken to the Framingham hospital, where this afternoon they were described as being in serious condition from burns.

The father, Paul Dyckeski, was staying with relatives in the Hyde Park section of Boston, where he was notified of the tragedy that had befallen his family.

The mother was being guarded at her hospital cot today by police who said they would obtain a warrant for her arrest on a charge of murder.

Police Seek Chinese For Questioning On Death of Man At Home In Uplands

Fourteen Blows Struck By Midnight Assassin

Family Sleeps While Murder Takes Place in Basement; Revenge May Be Motive, Police Think; Discount Suggestion of Robbery

In search of the hatchet murderer who on Tuesday night claimed as a victim Sue Min Jim, houseboy at the home of H. M. McGivern, Uplands, police announced this morning they were attempting to locate the trail of a suspect in the case.

At the same time they were investigating the part a Chinese woman in the city may have played in events leading up to the gruesome killing at the McGivern residence, known as "Crossways."

Sue's body, with the head almost slashed to pieces, by fourteen blows, was found lying in the basement at 9:30 o'clock yesterday morning by Mrs. Alice Watson, the family nursemaid. He had been struck just after entering an outside door.

A sharp, heavy instrument, probably a Chinese meat chopper, is believed to have been the death weapon. It has not been found, despite an intensive police search of the bushes and grass adjoining the house.

Police have formed the theory, tentatively, that personal revenge was the motive for the killing. The suggestion of robbery has been practically discarded, although a $50 bill and some jewelry were found in the room. A third supposition, that he was murdered over political differences, is not given much support at present.

The possible connection of a woman with the case was learned by police this morning, but they did not enlarge on this angle, pending further inquiries. Sue has a wife and one daughter in Toy Sun, China.

whose mutilated body was found in the basement of his employer's home yesterday.

Chief John Syme, of the Oak Bay force, is in charge of the investigation with Constable W. H. Douglas. They are assisted by Corporal M. F. Breen and Detective G. J. Haywood of the R.C.M.P. Detective Haywood was formerly a member of the Shanghai police and has considerable knowledge of Chinese customs.

While not giving the name of the suspected man, the police said it was practically certain the killer was someone familiar with the habits of Sue, and probably with the layout of the basement of the McGivern home. All efforts were directed to-day to locate the man in question, believed to be a Chinese, to learn his name.

The type of weapon used, as indicated by the wounds, supports the conviction that the murderer was Chinese. Hatchet wounds are not uncommon among the race.

Dr. J. H. Moore performed the post mortem this morning at Haywood's B. C. Funeral Home, at which he ascribed death due to the head wounds, of which there were fourteen. The inquest will be held Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

ABOUT MIDNIGHT

Sue was murdered while the McGivern family slept in bedrooms two stories above the basement. The time of the murder has been approximately around midnight Tuesday, as the victim left town on the 11:30 o'clock bus, alighting at 11:40 o'clock about 300 yards from the house.

According to the police reconstruction, the killer was escorted behind the basement door awaiting Sue's return. As the houseboy entered and turned to shut and lock the door, the first blow was struck. After he fell, face downward, the body was trampled by several more blows. There were huge gashes on the top of the head, an ear was cut off and the face badly battered.

Bennett Declines To Bar Titles Till Parliament Debates

Liberal Leader Insists Commons Be Given Opportunity to Express Its Views, But Premier Balks

Ottawa, May 25.—Premier Bennett declines to say there will be no titles granted to Canadians until Parliament has considered the broad question of the acceptance of honors from the King.

The Commons had this information to-day as it continued to hammer at the Redistribution Bill in the hope of reaching a compromise.

Titles could be granted by the King, Mr. Bennett said in reply to Mr. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie-King, Liberal leader in the House yesterday, without the consent or approval of parliament or ministers. It was the considered view of the government the King should not be asked to grant titles without the consent of parliament.

The short incident ended in a verbal clash between the two party leaders. "I do not wish," said Mr. King, "to deprive the Prime Minister of being made a life peer, if that is the intention of His Majesty, but all I would ask him is that before a title of that kind is accepted by himself or anyone else an opportunity be given this Parliament to express its views with respect to titles in this country."

"I suppose I should say," replied Premier Bennett, "that if the Liberal leader thinks he has added to the courtesies of debate, or established for himself any firmer position in the regard and esteem of the people of the country by the observations he has just made in answer to an explanation with respect to the limitation of the prerogative of the crown, then I am content."

"I am content also," said Mr. King, "if the Prime Minister thinks his lecture will improve the amenities of Parliament. What I said was perfectly reasonable in the circumstances. It was a remark which was understood by members of the House and which will be understood by the country in the spirit in which it was meant."

GERMANS CAUSE OF RIOT IN NEW YORK

AGGRESSOR NATIONS DEBATED AT GENEVA

SUSPECT IN HATCHET MURDER CASE

After being notified, Chief Syme called Dr. W. P. Walker, H. E. Ride-wood and P. A. C. Coulson to the house in the absence from the city of Coroner E. C. Hart. When the medical men had viewed the body it was removed to the funeral parlor.

The chief stated this morning the murderer had left no apparent traces. The window sash in Sue's room was turned over to Detective T. H. Bamford, finger expert at city police headquarters, but this afforded no clue.

The officers closely inspected a number of garden tools which lay against the wall near the body. On a pickaxe were small bloodstains, but these apparently had been caused by splashing of blood.

Checking back over Sue's movements Tuesday evening, police were unable to discover anything which might indicate he was expecting an attack. He had been in Chinatown and visited one or two places, then taking the late bus home, as was his custom.

Papers and other documents found by the police, revealed Sue as an industrious worker and careful saver, not addicted to gambling. Duplicates of bank drafts to China showed he had been sending sums of money back regularly. His bank book showed a balance of more than $650. He had been employed for eight years by Mr. McQuiver and was last in China in 1926. He was thirty-two years old.

ROBBERY UNLIKELY
When police found that his clothes had not been rifled, nor his room disturbed, they discarded the suggestion of robbery as a motive for the killing. However, he is known to have cashed his pay cheque last Saturday and had a $50 bill on his person earlier in the week. This had not been deposited in the bank and was not located in his pockets which contained only $1.15.

Sue was a member of the Chinese Nationalist Association.

RAIN WRECKS NANAIMO PLANS

Horse Racing and Other Celebration Events Cancelled

B.C. Junior Soccer Championship Final Ends in Draw

Nanaimo, May 25.—Rain falling until noon marred events planned for Empire Day yesterday. The float parade was held but it was impossible to permit children to participate.

Race horse events and steeplechases had to be abandoned, which meant loss of thousands of dollars. The ground was deemed unsafe for riders owing to continual rain of past few days.

Despite the inclement weather there was a large influx of visitors to witness the parade. Many beautiful floats were exhibited and the parade would have been one of the finest in the history of the city but for the rain.

The feature of the parade was the inclusion of the party of B.C. mounted police in charge of Inspector Owens. The may queen and her party adjourned to the Malaspina Hotel to have lunch with Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Fordham-Johnson. The crowning ceremonies were performed at the Central Sports Grounds by His Honor, before 1,000 people.

The children's sports, which were to be held in the afternoon, were cancelled. The final between Nanaimo Park Rangers and Lloyd's Pharmacy for the B.C. junior championship was staged at six o'clock before 2,000 spectators, the game ending in a 2 to 2 draw.

The celebrations ended with the Empire Ball in the Pygmy Pavilion, where the may queen elect, Mary Carter, escorted by Mayor Barclay, led the grand march. There were nearly 1,000 dancers on the floor.

The celebration committee decided to postpone the horse racing events to the morning of May 26, and children's parade until June 3. It is also expected the replay for the O. B. Allan Cup will be played here on that date.

Two thousand autos were turned away from the race track.

U.S. MAY EXTEND LUMBER DUTY

Canadian Press and Associated Press
Washington, May 25.—The Roosevelt administration favors the extension for another year of the United States import taxes on coal, copper, lumber and oil as a part of the pending revenue public works legislation.

It is the opinion of President Roosevelt this extension is necessary to assure revenue, and it might as well be laid out now with other taxes under consideration. The import taxes would have expired a year from July 1.

Ottawa, May 25.—The United States import tax affects Canada chiefly in regard to lumber. The United States tariff on unmanufactured lumber is $1 a thousand feet, and the import tax $3 additional. This $4 tax has largely stopped Canadian lumber exports across the border.

British Propose New Text For Consultative Pact to Embody U.S. Proposals

Canadian Press and Associated Press
Geneva, May 25.—Sir John Simon, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, yesterday proposed a new draft for the security consultative pact before the Disarmament Conference. Sir John told the conference his revisions were to conform with United States policy, particularly the American promise to refrain from any act weakening measures which the League of Nations might suggest against an aggressor. This doctrine, the United States representative, Norman H. Davis, said, would be embodied in a unilateral declaration to be made shortly by the Washington government.

CONSULTATION PLAN

The amended clauses of the British draft stipulate that in case of a breach or threat of a breach of the Briand-Kellogg pact, the League or any non-member may propose general consultation. The objects of this consultation would be: 1. To exchange views for the purpose of preserving peace and averting conflict. 2. In the event of a breach, to use good offices for the restoration of peace. 3. If it is found impossible to restore peace, to determine which party or parties to the dispute are to be held responsible. If it is possible to identify the aggressor, Mr. Davis said, the United States government undertakes to refrain from any action likely to defeat the concerted efforts of other nations to deal with the offending state.

AGGRESSOR DEFINED

The security commission of the conference yesterday defined an aggressor as a nation which is the first to commit any of the following acts: Declaration of war; Invasion by armed forces of the territory of another with or without a declaration of war; a naval blockade, or support to armed bands formed in its territory which have invaded another state or refusal to deprive them of protection. No political, military, economic or other considerations may excuse or justify aggression, according to the definition agreed on by the security commission.

BRITISH PREMIER IS CRITICIZED

Viscount Snowden, Addressing Lords, Makes Sharp Attack on MacDonald

Canadian Press and Associated Press
London, May 25.—Viscount Snowden of Icknesham made a scathing attack on Prime Minister MacDonald, his former cabinet colleague, in the House of Lords yesterday. "I would suggest the government should look into the case of the Prime Minister not only in his own interests but in the interests of the country," Lord Snowden said. "For it is a positive danger to the country that its affairs should be in the hands of a man who, every time he speaks, exposes his ignorance or incapacity."

The viscount, for years a colleague of Mr. MacDonald in the Labor Party, declared the Prime Minister might better have saved time and expense than to have gone to Washington for President Roosevelt's economic discussions. "There were no results," Lord Snowden said, "except a repetition of the platitudes which we have heard scores of times in connection with the forthcoming conference."

The speech was made in the course of a debate on British policy at the World Economic Conference opening June 12.

Canadian Press
London, May 25.—Sergeant Albert Pankhurst of the First Scots Guards today was reduced to the ranks by a court-martial for his part in a recent Hyde Park breakfast-cooking incident. Guardsman William Fisher Cavender was given fourteen days' detention.

The court-martial drew testimony from Company Sergeant-Major Taylor two days ago that he had gone to a powder magazine in Hyde Park early one morning and had found a sentry box empty and the sentry cooking a meal in the guard house while the guard slept, unwashed and unshaven five minutes before it was to have been relieved.

The definition later was stricken out.

"After YOU, My Dear Gaston!"

The second of a series of Traffic Situations—a clearer understanding of which will promote safer and better driving in British Columbia

SEE if you can figure this one. Two street cars, A and B, together with four motor vehicles, C, D, E and F, arrive at a five-way intersection. It is assumed the time is 9.30 p.m., when traffic signals are not working. Intended direction of the six vehicles is indicated by arrows. What would you say if asked:

- Who goes first? And in what order do the others move?
- Why?
- Say you are driving motor bus X, what are you supposed to do?

See if you can answer these before turning to page 15.

REVIVED HOPE THAT GENEVA GATHERING WILL GET SOMEWHERE

On behalf of Great Britain, Sir John Simon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, has proposed a new draft for the security consultative pact now under consideration at the Disarmament Conference at Geneva. It is intended to conform with United States policy, particularly that country's promise to refrain from any act which might weaken measures the League of Nations considered advisable to adopt against an aggressor.

For example, the amended clauses of the British draft stipulate that in case of a breach or threat of the Briand-Kellogg pact—the agreement outlawing war as an instrument of national policy—the League or any non-member may propose a general consultation. The objects of this would be:

1. To exchange views for the purpose of preserving peace and averting the conflict.
2. In the event of a breach, to use good offices for the restoration of peace.
3. If it is found impossible to restore peace, to determine which party or parties to the dispute are to be held responsible.

The security commission of the Disarmament Conference has defined an aggressor as a nation which is the first to commit any of the following acts: Declaration of war; invasion by armed forces of the territory of another with or without declaration of war; attack by land, naval or air forces; a naval blockade, or support to armed bands formed in its territory which have invaded another state or refusal to deprive them of protection. It is further stipulated that no political, military, economic or other considerations may excuse or justify aggression.

Although the chief business of the Disarmament Conference, of course, is to reach an agreement on practical disarmament, towards which progress has been hampered by exhaustive discussion of technicalities, the amended draft of the security consultative pact as submitted by Sir John Simon and the definition of United States policy, are indications that the conference after all will save itself from failure.

How far President Roosevelt proposes to go in association with the other powers is reflected in a dispatch from Washington to-day, which says that if a satisfactory arms agreement is reached, the Roosevelt doctrine of non-interference with co-operative efforts to enforce peace will be summed up in a declaration signed only by the United States, and thus not requiring Senate ratification. The upper house of Congress is the traditional defender of the isolationist policy and the President obviously does not desire to run the risk of rejection. He is already being assailed by a noisy section of the press which accuses him of "entangling" the United States.

CANADA AND THE TITLES QUESTION

Whether Premier Bennett is in a hurry to crash the gates of the House of Lords, as some of his critics claim, or has no aspirations for a coronet, his statement on the question of titles for Canadians is widely open to debate. He contends, first, that the action of former Parliaments in respect of this subject is not binding on the present Parliament, and, second, that the King's prerogative in the bestowal of decorations of this kind can not be nullified except by a specific statute which the present government has no intention of proposing.

The granting of titles to residents of Canada was not discontinued because of any statute passed by the Canadian Parliament. What Parliament did was to pass a resolution praying the King to refrain from bestowing these honors as far as Canada was concerned, and as in most instances these originated in recommendations from His Majesty's government, the prerogative actually involved, in practical application, was that of the government.

The modern record on this matter began in the House of Commons in 1918 with a motion by W. F. Nickle, Conservative member for Kingston, that the King be asked to refrain from conferring hereditary titles upon any subject residing in Canada. Sir Robert Borden, Conservative leader of the government, introduced an amendment praying that the sovereign grant no hereditary titles except for war service to Canadians without the approval or advice of the Prime Minister of Canada. Sir Robert's amendment was carried.

In 1919 Mr. Nickle reopened the subject with a resolution praying the King to grant no titles of any kind to Canadians, whether hereditary or not. The debate arising from this resolution caused the appointment of a special committee which submitted a report providing that the King be asked to bestow no titles of any kind upon his subjects in Canada. This report was approved by a vote of 96 to 43. Since that time no titles have been bestowed upon residents of Canada by the sovereign. Attempts have been made to revive the question, but all of them have been overwhelmingly defeated. Most of the members of the Canadian Parliament realized that a vast majority of the Canadian people did not want the title system, feeling that a titled aristocracy would be out of place in this country.

Even in the Old Country, titles are now granted sparingly, but a few years ago the practice was stigmatized in both the House of Commons and House of Lords in London as a public scandal in a very wide application. A special committee of the House of Lords, under the chairmanship—we think—of Lord Selborne, after an inquiry submitted a report strongly denouncing the promiscuous granting of honors, which it was declared were sold by the governments which recommended them, in many cases, for campaign funds.

Both parties were slated for this traffic. It was notorious that Mr. Lloyd George's big campaign fund of many millions emanated from this source. At one time there was actually a graduated fixed rate for the various orders for party fund purposes. More recently a case arose in which a man who claimed he was promised a peerage and had made a big campaign fund contribution, but did not receive the honor, threatened to take his cause to the courts. These disclosures aroused widespread criticism. The traffic was naturally resented by those who bore titles granted by the sovereign for meritorious services in statesmanship, literature, art, science and in war, who felt that the honors awarded to them had been cheapened by a practice which had been extensively subordinated to the exigencies of party politics.

This is not to say that trafficking in titles was a recent innovation, since history is full of instances in which monarchs have bestowed these decorations for very dubious reasons. Charles the Second, for example, made three of his mistresses duchesses and their offspring dukes, while many royal favorites who had little or no merit were honored in the same way, at various times, receiving with their honors large areas of the public domain. In many cases, however, their successors have given to these distinctions a lustre which was altogether lacking when they first were awarded.

As for Canada, while Mr. Bennett may contend that the present Canadian Parliament is not bound by what other Parliaments may have done in regard to titles, the government, which in British countries is the servant—not the master—of Parliament, should consider itself so bound until a resolution has been passed in the House of Commons rescinding the one which was adopted in 1919.

SAANICH STRIKES ITS TORY COLORS

Premier Tolmie was nominated as a candidate for Saanich on Tuesday evening by a convention which, according to its chairman, was composed of representatives of all of the major political parties. Just how large was the leaven of political opinion other than Conservative we do not know, but we do know that the convention was arranged by the Saanich Conservative Association and that its chairman was the president of that body. Obviously, having already passed a resolution committing itself to the support of the Premier in all circumstances, the Saanich Conservative Association had to resolve itself into a unionist organization in view of the Premier's announcement that he was not leading a Conservative party in this election, while the Premier himself, in the light of his announcement, could not accept a nomination at the hands of a Conservative association. After all, is it not true that "a rose by any other name will smell as sweet?"

But however unionist Tuesday's convention may have been, the fact remains that the Saanich Conservative Association has repudiated the Conservative party in the present political situation in this province. Following the Premier's lead it has struck its party colors, and can not hoist them again, for good or ill, as long as it stays on the Premier's ship.

Since the Provincial Conservative Association has abandoned any participation in the coming election, and since riding after riding has pulled down its Conservative flag, there is every indication that there will be nobody who will run under Conservative auspices unless Victoria, for instance, puts a last-ditcher or two in the field. Apparently there is now none so poor as to do reverence to the memory of a great political party, as far as this province is concerned. If our morning contemporary also should strike its historic and traditional colors it would be like kicking a corpse.

One brief term in office seems to have played havoc with our Conservative party friends. The proud galleon which set sail with bands playing and flags flying in 1928 has now become an abandoned derelict and a menace to navigation. All this, notwithstanding Mr. Twigg's declaration that the Tolmie Conservative Government gave the best administration British Columbia ever had—and Mr. Twigg himself has left the ship and is now swimming to the boom which flies a tattered shirt labelled "unionist," instead of a flag.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

HAPPY BERMUDA!
 The Kansas City Times

Bermuda is often referred to as a taxless country, for the taxes in that English colony are so small as to be a burden to no one. For example, a person owning a $40,000 estate in Hamilton Parish pays a general tax of only about $10 a year. In Paget Parish, where the taxes are somewhat higher, an estate with an assessed valuation of about $40,000 (and with a sale value much higher) would pay only $100 annually. There are no income or inheritance taxes, and hence the islands so popular with Americans are veritable Utopia for the rich man.

PICTURE CENSORSHIP
 The Toronto Telegram

By those who are familiar with the motion picture business it is pointed out that unnecessary alarm has been occasioned by the statement that while 2,153 films were passed by the Ontario Motion Picture Censors, only 108 were graded as fit for family consumption. In one instance these figures were seized upon as basis for the suggestion that the censoring of motion pictures should be placed in the hands of teachers. As a matter of fact, the grading of films as "universal" applies only to feature pictures. In the 2,153 films passed, there would perhaps be three or four hundred news reels and about a thousand short subjects, such as cartoons, comedies and scenic. It is from the remaining four or five hundred feature pictures that 108 were marked as suitable for families.

Loose Ends

It's cold and hungry at half-past six in the morning—and it induces deep and very dull thoughts—which you won't understand unless you are starving, too—but after breakfast the world seems heroic again.

By H. B. W.

DEEP THOUGHTS

THIS, I FEAR, will be a deep and profound column. I feel that way. One is usually inclined to feel that way at half-past six in the morning—very thoughtful, very deep, remarkably profound. The circumstances are such as to induce thought, depth and profundity. I mean, at half-past six in the morning, while one is waiting for breakfast (and no prospect of getting it until half-past seven at the earliest) one is apt to be a little melancholy. Starvation, I find, produces pensiveness and a certain sublime detachment from the affairs of the world. I mean, it is an awfully long time between half-past six and half-past seven in the morning.

As a matter of fact, it has been the ambition of my life to have a column ahead for just such a day as this. Then I should be able to starve in relative comfort, without having to labor while doing so. For four years now I have tried to get a column ahead, a reserve supply in case of accidents. Once or twice I succeeded, but before the week was out I had used it up, spent the surplus, blown my entire bank account and was out one street again, broke. Never once have I turned in a column to the unhappy printers more than five minutes before the very last moment when they could print it. I have often thought our civilization would have survived and the gold standard remained unimpaired if I had been six minutes later. So, even while starving at half-past six o'clock on a cold and frosty morning, I still battle on to lift the intelligence of this community. And what a prospect that is for both of us!

GREATEST AGE

WELL, IT IS at such times as this, at half-past six a.m., and no nourishment in sight, that I realize the deep and profound fact that we are living in history's greatest age. Did you ever pause to think about that? Probably not, for you are never up this early and aren't starving either (unless you happened, in a moment of weakness, to be sworn in as a member of the provincial government lately, like the unfortunate Mr. Dennies, in which case cannot be paid any salary until the end of June). Yes, this is history's greatest age. Beside it all the great ages of the past, which you studied at school, are pitiful and puny indeed.

We are living in the age of history's most gigantic revolution and experiment in human government over these islands. We are watching the upheaval of the whole Orient, the rebuilding of Europe, the creation of a new civilization in the United States and, in brief, the complete collapse of an order of things which existed, more or less, for 5,000 years up to 1914. Beside that the fall of Rome was an incident on the frontier, the "Norman Conquest a barbarian's brawl," the whole Napoleonic era just a tribal quarrel.

NO HEROES

YET I DON'T feel in the least heroic. Not at half-past six. I have not yet met anyone in this part of the world who feels heroic or heroic enough to save me. As I can see, this generation is going to live through history's greatest age without knowing anything about it. Instead of a thrilling chapter of human achievement, it will remember these times simply as the Depression. The other day I questioned half a dozen fellows to find out just how they were affecting the average man, to discover, if I could, any glimmer of heroism, any perception, however faint, of the great historical drama in which we are all actors.

First (and this was the week of the European crisis, the United States' advance on Peiping and the attempt to reintroduce titles into Canada), I asked a chap who runs an elevator and spends most of the day reading newspapers. "Anything new or exciting these days?" I said quite cheerfully. (This was after breakfast and I was no longer starving.) The elevator man looked at me disgustedly. "New?" he said. "There's nothing new happens in these times. Say, didn't you know this is the depression?" I also asked a barber if he liked this heroic age. He replied that so many fellows were shaving themselves these days that there was no money in barbering any more. I asked Mr. Pudgebury and he said it milk prices went much lower the country would be ruined. Colonel Blossom said things would get back to normal—and all that when the government had enough sense to look up a few of the agitators, and he looked rather hard at me as he said it. Finally I asked a noted provincial statesman how he liked living in this great age of change, revolution and heroic measures. He replied that he didn't think any party could get a majority in the next Legislature and didn't know what the world was coming to. Indeed, the present state of society almost persuaded him to retire from politics altogether.

INSULATED

ALTOGETHER, THE complete insulation of the human animal to the greatness, the depth and the profundity of these times is a continual source of amazement to me, particularly when I feel it all so deeply at half-past six in the morning. I suppose the trouble is that so few people get up early like this and, despite the depression, only a few of us are really starving. Few of us can see the prehistoric chaos as a glorious adventure. To most of us it is just the depression, and its outstanding fact is a cut in the monthly pay cheque.

The thing that pains me to admit, to admit it pining for a return of normal times, so long this age remains just the depression, and not a splendid opportunity.

But it is no wonder that the possibilities and adventure of the time have been obscured from most of us. The old men who ran the world into this jam and are still running it, have done their best to hide the truth from themselves and us. They have struggled desperately and conscientiously to prevent us realizing that there isn't going to be any return to normal, that there isn't any security left in the old sense at all, that the new generation now coming up isn't going to listen to our dribbling sentiments for a by-gone time. We are living in a dangerous age, my poor friends (and it is a little appalling at this time in the morning), but did it ever occur to you that danger is the natural state of man? That in complete security he has always got fat and rotted away and died? That when he wasn't adventuring and pressing forward, and risking his life, he was invariably losing it through decay? Did it ever occur to you that the worst crime we are committing against our children is the perpetuation of the belief that they are entering upon a static, unchanging world, where they can be comfortable and enjoy themselves? There isn't such a world and to create one, even if we could, would be a worse crime still. For while we may see only the depression and a cut in salary and the weird gyrations of provincial politics, because we are too old and mentally obese for anything better, the young will find the world exciting enough, adventurous enough, splendid enough in opportunity. Why, since I had breakfast, just before this paragraph, it looks better to me already.

Premier Tolmie Is Nominated

Conservative President Presides But Saanich Convention Said to Be Non-party

"Unionist" Announced as Official Name of Movement Headed By Retiring Cabinet

Premier Tolmie was unanimously nominated as Conservative-Unionist candidate in Saanich for the approaching provincial election at a convention of delegates from all parts of the riding gathered at the Women's Institute Hall, Royal Oak, Tuesday evening.

It was the first nomination made in the province by the Premier's new party.

W. O. Wallace, president of the Saanich Conservative Association, presided at the meeting, but it was made clear that he was presiding over a "Unionist" convention, nominating a "Unionist" candidate. It was the first time since he became Premier that Dr. Tolmie has not appeared before constituents under straight Conservative auspices.

The Premier was nominated by Lieut.-Col. S. L. McMullen, rancher, and seconded by James Roe, boiler-maker. President Wallace announced that the meeting was made up of Conservatives, Liberals and Laborites.

UNKNOWN GOVERNMENT

H. D. Twigg, M.P.P., Tolmie party organizer, asserted that the Tolmie administration had given a high standard of government unknown in the province before, and declared that Dr. Tolmie's Unionist government was going over in a big way.

"It makes me prouder than ever after five years of the most difficult conditions that you have decided to offer me this honor again," the Premier said in accepting the nomination. "I feel that during the last few years we have got along very well and there have not been any serious controversies in the district.

The Premier dealt in detail with the large public works expenditures he had secured for Saanich during the last five years, including the new paved highway to Butchart's Gardens, the new $25,000 Craigflower Bridge, the new $20,000 West Saanich and Verdier Avenue sections leading to the ferry landing, the $22,000 miles of arterial Saanich highways taken over by the provincial government, thus relieving Saanich of the cost; special assistance given to the berry growers, wine industry and hot-house tomato industry. The Premier also told of getting higher duties on dehydrated loganberries and processed strawberries, of granting a $60,000 loan to the strawberry growers for processing, and obtaining lower freight rates on shipments of fruit out and shipments of grain and feed in and success in getting the rebate of the two-cent sugar tax for the canners.

The Premier announced his party, which has been called the Tolmie Conservative Unionist party, would now be known as the Unionist Party of British Columbia.

SEES DEPRESSION OVER

"I think we have reached the bottom of the depression and the prospects for the future are excellent," the Premier said.

The Premier announced that a platform for the Unionist Party is now in course of preparation and would soon be presented.

JONES AND DENNIS SPEAK

Hon. J. W. Jones, Finance Minister, told how he had cut provincial costs by $742,000 in the last two years and by $900,000 in the last three years. He said B.C. had sinking funds which exceeded those of Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta combined, amounting to more than $2,000,000 and with a surplus of $2,000,000 over requirements.

Hon. W. M. Dennis, Minister of Labor, said he interpreted his appointment by Premier Tolmie as a tribute to Labor and not to himself. He declared what was wanted was a constructive move forward on behalf of humanity, with a rapid return of men to industry and productive employment.

SEAL DESTRUCTION

To the Editor:—The International Enquiry Office for Truthseekers, La Hague, Holland, draws attention to an article in "Science et Voyages" of February 18, 1932, by R. Thevenin. This has reference to the sealing industry and suggests that the methods of obtaining the skins should be dealt with by international law.

On certain islands, for instance, a company has right to hunt these creatures with the reservation that only the males are to be killed, and those of a certain age. Other concessions have been given by other nations, large profits accruing.

The fact that these poor creatures are beyond the protection of animal protection organizations makes their fate anything but enviable. At the beginning of summer the gambolling flocks are driven back, inland, to prevent their escape by sea, the males being separated and directed towards enclosures where they are ruthlessly slaughtered. "It is not enough here to describe what happens. One must in some sort prove it, not by one's own statement, but by the testimony of those who have themselves had a part in it and who cannot therefore be accused of partiality." So terrible are the descriptions that follow that protests are being made and the governments concerned will be asked to see that this annual massacre is conducted more mercifully. Persons interested in getting some sort of justice for the tortured seals may sign the protest at 315 Bayward Building.

PICNIC ENJOYED BY UNEMPLOYED

Young and old alike enjoyed the annual outing of the National Unemployed Workers' Association at Beacon Hill picnic grounds yesterday when a fine programme of games and sports were arranged for the younger people and a number of addresses were given to the older members of the gathering. The families came together at the picnic grounds about 1 o'clock, and after an hour's romp, the children started their sports, taking great delight in the races and games arranged for them. Basket lunches were served late in the afternoon, with ice cream being given to the children. The function was brought to a close at 6 o'clock.

Great Throng Is Blessed By Pope

Rome, May 25.—Pope Pius left the Vatican to-day and drove to the Basilica of St. John Lateran, the "mother church" of the Roman Catholic world, thus resuming an Ascension Day custom abandoned in 1870. An estimated 300,000 persons received the Pontiff's blessing.

WOMEN WHO NEVER COUNT COSTS

They choose this 25¢ tooth paste only because it gives new beauty and lustre

Among the three million users of Listerine Tooth Paste are thousands upon thousands of women of this type—well educated, well informed, critical of values, and with ample means to fulfill their wants. Such women would never compromise with quality for the mere sake of economy. Clearly, their rejection of older and costlier favorites for Listerine Tooth Paste was based, not upon the latter's price, but upon the brilliant and satisfying results it gave them.

If you have not tried this remarkable new dentifrice, made by the makers of Listerine, do so now. Buy a tube. Try it for a week or more and then note the improvement in your teeth.

See how clean they are—how clean they feel, both in front and in back.

Note the absence of repellent tartar and the unsightly stains of food and tobacco. Observe the flash and brilliance that this tooth paste gives to teeth.

They are due to those swift-acting, fine-textured, cleansing and polishing agents that make Listerine Tooth Paste outstanding. Look for the delightful feeling of freshness and invigoration that follows the use of this paste—the taste you associate with Listerine itself. And of course you know it makes your breath sweeter.

In case you're interested, the price of 25¢ saves you about $3.00 a year over tooth pastes in the 50¢ class. Not a staggering sum, but a welcome one in these times. Lambert Pharmaceutical Company, Toronto, Ontario.

MANY ATTEND KINSMAN SHOW

Clubmen Provide Evening of Diversified Entertainment For Large Crowd

A diversified programme of amusement and entertainment, which provided a varied evening for all, attracted nearly 3,000 holiday makers to the Kinsman "Karnival" at the Crystal Garden yesterday evening. The clubmen proved themselves excellent hosts and were widely complimented on their well-arranged programme. Entire proceeds from the show will be given in aid of club charities.

For those more interested in water sports the evening included a water polo game, between teams from the naval barracks and H.M.C.B. Elzevir, and a relay race, with members of the Kinsman, Rotary and Gyro service clubs taking part. The former event was won by the barracks representatives by a six to four score, while in the relay the following Kinsmen were successful in winning the trophy: Alan Wright, Eugene Francis and Bill Dillabough. The Gyros were second and Rotarians third.

A feature of the entertainment was Randall's marionette show. One end of the building was devoted entirely to midway attractions where the club "barkers" enticed prospects to their wheels of chance, where they might use "phony" money. Dancing was enjoyed in the south ballroom and the lower hall all evening.

In conjunction with the Karnival, the clubmen conducted an estimating contest, the winners of which will receive free trips to Honolulu and Alaska. Following were the committees in charge of the various events: Door and tickets, E. Martin, Paul Brooker, J. Gibson, S. Whittington, T. Dickenson; ladies' bridge room, A. B. Food, Len. Nickells, Cecil Luckhart, Dr. Stanley P. Miles, Walter S. Smith; "phony" money sellers, Dr. Miles, L. Nickells, E. J. Savannah, A. J. Helmcken and Dr. A. Poyntz; marionette show, E. Sanders, P. Balgund, E. Dyson and R. Shanks; water sports, Dr. Poyntz and W. Dillabough; "bingo," E. Savannah, H. Sabiston, H. Francis, W. Smith, E. Burns, W. Passmore, P. J. Mulcahy, J. Gibson and C. Luckhart; wheels of fortune, J. Woodley, A. Wright, W. Dillabough, A. Helmcken, R. Maze, B. Thomson, George P. Pitt, E. Stock and A. B. Food.

FIRE DISPLAYS THRILL CROWDS

Pyrotechnics Over Harbor Delight Thousands; "Old Man Depression" Burns

Victoria, B. C., May 24, ended its holiday by jamming the Causeway and the front of the Parliament Buildings and the Empress Hotel to take in a display of fireworks and illuminations.

Skyrockets, Very lights, colored fountains, Roman candles and aerial bombs soared over the waters of the harbor to the sighs of admiration from the crowds. Thousands of other persons watched the display from the hills and other vantage points in the city. The Parliament Buildings, Post Office, Empress Hotel and C.P.R. wharf station buildings were all outlined in electric lights. At Clover Point a huge bonfire was started by officials of the Junior Chamber of Commerce as the funeral pyre of "Old Man Depression." Thousands in motor cars and on foot gathered along Dallas Road and in the Clover Point park space to admire this. Boats in the Straits, including the Princess Louise, returning from Seattle with 1,000 Victoria excursionists, were able to see the great bonfire from afar. The returning excursionists from the Straits also got glimpses of the colored fireworks bursting over the city.

Force Complimented on Efficiency and Record at Annual Inspection

Helmets Reappear as Part of Police Uniforms in Victoria

Victoria's police force was commended on its "splendid record and smart appearance" when the annual inspection by the Board of Police Commissioners was held on Tuesday afternoon.

The men were told by Mayor Leeming, the city's chief magistrate, that Victorians take a deal of pride in their police force. On behalf of the force, Chief Heatley gave the assurance they would endeavor to maintain this standard.

The inspection was held at headquarters with the mayor, Judge P. S. Leppman and Police Magistrate George Jay attending. Afterwards the full force posed in new uniforms, with the commissioners for a picture.

The marked change in the police uniform is the headgear. After two years' absence, the helmet has returned as part of the police apparel, but it is a new and lighter type, smarter and more comfortable than the heavy top-pieces replaced by caps when Chief Heatley first took command of the force.

The mayor made special reference to the helmets in a brief talk to the men after inspection in the drillroom.

POPULAR WITH PUBLIC
"I believe the citizens appreciate this type of helmet," he said. "When you changed to the caps I thought Victoria was the last city in Canada to discard the helmet, but I have since discovered that they are still popular in many centres."

The mayor congratulated the chief and officers on the improved smartness of their appearance on duty during the last few years. He also commended them for the harmony existing in the department.

"And, as you know, there was only one major crime involved last year in the city. That is a proud record, of which few other departments could boast," he added.

COMPLIMENTS CHIEF

He complimented the chief and senior officials for their handling of the force in unimportant demonstrations, referring to the excellent restraint shown by the men, preventing anything in the nature of a clash.

In conclusion he touched upon the unpleasant duty falling on the commissioners of cutting the police pay this year, but added: "I hope and trust the day is not far distant when it can be restored in whole or in part."

After the chief had expressed thanks on behalf of the force, the commissioners were taken on a tour of the building to inspect the equipment. Considerable interest was displayed in the new criminal identification bureau, in charge of Detective T. Harvey Bamford and Detective Jack Rogers under Mr. Harrison's supervision. The various operations were described—first the casting of bullets, sizing and greasing the bullets, weighing of the powder load, capping the shell, and then the final loading process. He explained how this would result in a considerable saving in ammunition costs, at the same time increasing the opportunities of the constables for practice and was warmly thanked by Chief Heatley for his interest and work in this connection.

RE-LOADING OPERATIONS
Conducted the commissioners in a demonstration of the revolver cartridge re-loading equipment recently set up and operated by Detective Bamford and Detective Jack Rogers under Mr. Harrison's supervision. The various operations were described—first the casting of bullets, sizing and greasing the bullets, weighing of the powder load, capping the shell, and then the final loading process. He explained how this would result in a considerable saving in ammunition costs, at the same time increasing the opportunities of the constables for practice and was warmly thanked by Chief Heatley for his interest and work in this connection.

To prove the efficiency of the re-loading of cartridges, some were taken downstairs to the range and Mayor Leeming tried his hand with a revolver. The commissioners were considerably impressed with this new departure in the police service.

2,296 programmes were sold and all proceeds from the sales were turned over to the Inn.

During the seventeen months of its continuous operation, the Sunshine Inn has served 127,000 meals through the support of the general public. While making his report, Captain Gadsden issued an appeal for fishing tackle to provide a fisherman with the means of making a livelihood. The man is sure of his ability to become independent if he can secure equipment, Captain Gadsden said.

and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Most mothers try to lend some special significance to the baby's chance actions. The baby grows and develops through constant activity of every muscle of the body. He keeps his face, arms, legs, feet, and hands in almost constant motion when he is awake.

PROTRUDING TONGUE

In exercising all the muscles of his body the baby is wont to thrust out his tongue. The baby who has a large, thick tongue, which protrudes constantly from between his teeth, may be suffering from thyroid trouble.

The old wives' explanation was that the baby "wanted something." They urged upon young mothers the necessity to remember some of their prenatal hankings, so that they might touch the baby's tongue with this particular food and end this gesture of hunger.

Such constant tongue protrusion may indicate something far more serious than could ever be helped by such homely measures. Usually it indicates a glandular shortness of the thyroid gland failing to supply the body with sufficient of its particular secretion. This thick, unmanageable tongue is one noticeable symptom of that deficiency. If the mother continues blind to this condition, she may find herself confronted with later mental and physical abnormalities.

OTHER SYMPTOMS, TOO

Mothers have been told that when the baby moves his head from side to side and puts his hands on his ears, he is suffering from earache. While no one has thought to add to that along with such random gestures as any baby might make in the course of a day, there would certainly be other very definite signs of illness. The baby does not have an earache without an accompanying fever, which is far more significant than the notions of his hands or head.

What a child does in his busy, active day usually means nothing. If his actions have some real significance, there will be other bodily conditions so unnatural as to advertise to the mother the danger of trying to read the signs herself.

St. John's A.Y.P.A.

Will Hold Races

The young people of St. John's gathered together to enjoy a social evening recently. A few business matters were attended to first. A letter from Miss Mabel Hayslake was read which stated that St. John's A.Y.P.A. elimination races will be held on June 3 for the picnic on July 1. The races will be run at the Heywood Avenue corner of Victoria Hill Park. The young people were reminded that anyone wishing to join the tennis club will be welcome. It was announced that the beach picnic will be held on Clover Point and not the Oak Bay beach, as previously announced. Everyone going will meet at 8:30 p.m. at the corner of May and Howe Streets taking the Number six car to that point. Owing to Miss Kathleen Smith being unable to take over the work of the publicity secretary next year, Miss Phyllis Gale was elected in her stead.

Visitors to the meeting were welcomed. The young people, having had a taste of hunting last week, commenced, with even more zest than before, to search for peanuts which had been placed in every conceivable spot. The second game was called "The Quest Game." The third game caused much merriment and confusion and included a series of stunts in which everyone anticipated. Then the young people joined together in a musical medley. Refreshments brought a delightful evening to a close.

VICTORIANS LITTLE NEROS
FIDDLING AS ROME BURNS
WRITES OXFORD GROUPEE

Mrs. Nell Glover, Recent Visitor Here, Writes Critically of Victoria and Its People in Article Appearing in Yorkshire Paper; Says Women Not Smart Because Clothes Come From United States

"The impression Victoria leaves on me is that a lot of little Neros are fiddling in complacency while Rome, in the shape of the rest of the world, is burning. This is not typical of the rest of British Columbia, or of Canada."

This somewhat scathing sentence occurs in an article entitled "Victoria—the last stronghold of the Victorians"—appearing over the signature of Nell Glover in a recent issue of a paper published in her home county of Yorkshire, England. Mrs. Glover will be remembered as a member of the Oxford Group team which enjoyed the hospitality of Victorians in March. During her stay here she spoke at the Metropolitan Church, advocating the Group principles of absolute unselfishness, absolute honesty, absolute love, and absolute purity.

ESSENTIALLY VICTORIAN

The article follows in full:

"I was thankful to miss by one day the earthquake in California, where my last article was written."

"To slip over from the United States to Canada leaves one in no doubt about the change in nationality, but at no point of the border line separating the two countries is the difference so obvious as it is in Victoria. In many respects Victoria, capital and seat of government of British Columbia, is more English than England to-day. She is still essentially Victorian. She is still essentially Victorian."

BUSINESS TABOO

"Here, in the approved English manner, walls and railings surround gardens; the imported laurel tree flourishes; and there are neatly-clipped hedges, just high enough to keep the other fellow from looking over. All this is very different from the general plan of Canadian gardens where dividing walls are not tolerated."

"Even the street signs are polite. It is a relief to read once again the familiar sign 'School.' Instead of 'Don't kill a child,' and 'Please cross here,' instead of 'Don't jay-walk across the road.'"

"The word business is taboo to most Victorians. Any progressive attempt to start an industry on the island is met with stern disapproval, and is usually voted down. There is no room for a growing generation. The sons and daughters of the workers, many of them small shopkeepers, follow in their parents' footsteps, while children of the 'retired' population, of which the island is largely composed, must seek an opening in other countries if the family income cannot support them."

"Everything of the Victorian period is preserved. In the antique shops, the 'what-not' occupies a similar position to the walnut bureau in English antique stores to-day. Bits of Victorian—needles, work, footstools, and beaded tea-trays are prized possessions."

DIVORCE NOT ENCOURAGED

"Few women are smart. Divorce is not encouraged. Most unhappy couples prefer to grin and bear it in the good old Victorian fashion rather than be front-page news, divorce cases being fully reported in the press."

"One day I sat for a while in the Legislature. The discussion was on moth-balls, apple trees, and deer. I assumed at first that the government was offering the familiar little moth-balls at cheap rates to somebody whose business it was to preserve deer-skins, and felt like Alice in Wonderland when I realized that they were to be tied round the apple trees to protect the fruit from the deer."

CANNY BEASTS

"A long-standing quarrel was being aired between the fruit growers of British Columbia, who wanted to exterminate the pest, and some very wicked hunters, who wanted to preserve deer for their own sport. Deer, it seems, have a partiality for fruit, and know how to get at it quickly by butting the trees until the apples, pears, or plums fall to the ground."

"At the same time they are canny little beasts most unwilling to approach what is to them a premonition sent. The government very solemnly impartial. They offered naphthalene at cheap rates to the ranch owners and told them to tie the bags of moth-balls round their fruit trees, and the hunters were to retain their rights to the deer."

MAIN STREETS BAD

"A few days later, I traveled through the fruit growing district of British Columbia where much of last year's fruit was rotting on the trees. In the present state of world trade it had not paid many of the ranch owners to gather their fruit, and market it."

"There are spots of surpassing beauty on the island, especially in the days, and there are some lovely homes, but the main streets are the worst that I have seen anywhere in Canada, and the shop-fronts are entirely out of date. I am told that an overdrawn bank account is a rare thing, and that the vaults of the banks are comfortably full."

"A visiting stranger is made welcome only after credentials have been carefully checked. The impression Victoria leaves on me is that a lot of little Neros are fiddling in complacency while Rome, in the shape of the rest of the world, is burning. This is not typical of the rest of British Columbia, or of Canada."

THE WOMEN NOT SMART

"I have been wondering why the women of Victoria, a government city, just miss being smart, for they are women of taste and, for the most part, good looking. I think it is because they import their smart clothes from the United States, London and Paris being too far away."

The result is not satisfactory because the English effect aimed at can never be achieved with American clothes which have a distinct flair of their own. In Montreal the smartest clothes are imported from London and Paris but Victoria being more than double the distance from Europe makes the cost of transport almost prohibitive."

"Canadian-made clothes cannot compare with those of the United States, either in price or in style. Women's clothes in the United States are the cheapest in the world. A smart-cut suit or frock can be bought for less than a pound, and everything else is in proportion in the way of hats and shoes. In Canada more than double must be paid for the same quality."

BRIDGE TO BE MADE HARDER

Mathematicians Are Converting Game From Pastime to Science; Degrees For It

Pittsburgh, May 25 (By John F. McMahon, Associated Press Staff Writer).—Mathematicians are taking over bridge, and the game promises to become more and more harrowing.

Dr. J. S. Taylor, professor of mathematics at University of Pittsburgh, predicted yesterday that bridge guests soon will be arriving for the party with slide rules and sets of logarithms tucked under their arms.

He is supervising the work of Miss Lillian Goldstein and Miss Eva Jane Griffith, post-graduate students, who will receive masters' degrees next month, for converting contract bridge from a pastime to a science.

The students hope to determine not only the evaluation of card combinations but, by the use of arithmetical calculations, the manner in which these hands should be played. Figures obtained indicate that standard values given to low card hands by bridge authorities have apparently been set too high in some instances, while those for high card hands have been underestimated.

Little Trips Into Nature

HUMMING-BIRDS

This summer I hope you will have the pleasure of watching a hummingbird. If you do, most likely it will be at a place where there are flowers. Hummingbirds take nectar from flowers, and they also eat insects which are in search of the very same nectar.

Most hummingbirds are bright colored, and may remind you of the flowers from which they sip nectar; but the "herm" hummingbird of Brazil has very plain plumage. Hermit hummers live in deep forests and do not visit flowers. Their food is made up of insects which they find on the bark and leaves of trees.

Ruby-throated hummingbirds are noted for their power in fighting. What they lack in size, they make up in speed. If a hawk—looking for eggs or young—comes near the nest of these little birds, it is more than likely that he will change his plans, under pressure from long, sharp bills.

Miss M. Mackenzie, M.A., Has Charge of All King George's Letters

Historians of the future will have a woman to thank. For it is a woman who keeps the archives at Buckingham Palace. Miss M. Mackenzie, M.A., is registrar of the department where all the King's letters and correspondence, invaluable records of the age, are preserved for the benefit of future generations.

Miss Mackenzie's two assistants in the Royal Archives Department are also women.

Many other women now hold responsible posts on the clerical staff at Buckingham Palace, although before the war there were only two or three women shorthand typists.

One of them, a chief typist in the Lord Chamberlain's office, has been busy sending out the "commands" to their majesties' courts, while two others who are employed in the private secretaries' office deal with much of the King's correspondence.

CHINESE AND LOCALS DRAW

Vancouver Students Play Neat Game Against All-stars; Each Team Gets a Goal

Bissell's Goal Late in Second Half Gives Victoria Tie; Good Attendance

Chinese Students of Vancouver, without three of their regulars in the forward line, played a neat game of football against Victoria All-Stars at the Athletic Park yesterday afternoon, but the lack of a scoring punch robbed them of victory and they had to be contented with a 1 to 1 draw. Fresh from their victory over North Shore, Dominion finalists in 1932, the Chinese played a fast, clean game, with outstanding defence and combination, but the locals fought doggedly and the centre forward, Claude Bissell, finally tied the score as the game drew to a close.

The visitors had by far the better of the play in the first half and gave a pretty exhibition to the packed stand. They played a passing game right up to the goal-mouth but the first really close call came when Quene Yip, centre and captain, headed a corner from Jang Gim over the crossbar. Shortly after, Jack Soon sent a likely looking shot over the bar and then G. Yip went on for Jang Gim, right wing.

The All-Stars tested Shipon Wong shortly after, when Noble's shot just missed the upright. The play was rushed back and forth, with the ball most often in the Victoria half. G. Yip got through but Margison was right on top of him and the Chinese forward could do no better than shoot right at Goale, Bourne, who saved.

Finally, in a general melee in front of the Victoria goal, Dock Yip, inside left, tapped the ball in and put the visitors in a 1 to 0 lead. The same player's shot hit one of the uprights soon afterward.

After about forty minutes of play the Chinese goalie was called on to clear the first difficult shot of the day from the Victoria forwards and did so in fine style.

Two shifts were made in the Victoria line-up at the beginning of the second half. Viggers went on for Thane at left half, and Sage replaced Gibson at right half, the latter playing going to Sage's former position at inside right. The Victoria team proceeded to have more of the game as the Chinese attack seemed to slacken.

Over twenty minutes of the half had elapsed when Bissell netted beautifully with a high, fast shot from well out. Great excitement reigned. The Chinese forced two corners right after the local score, but on these occasions as well as later they threw away great chances.

Viggers gave the Victoria supporters a thrill when he lobbed in a high shot from far out for which the diminutive Chinese goalie reached in vain, but which was a foot or so too high. Quene Yip, Chinese centre, then got through and missed what was probably the best scoring opportunity of the day. The hot pace set by the teams throughout began to tell in the closing minutes and the game slowed up.

The teams were:
Chinese Students—Shipon Wong, Frank Wong, Gordon Chang, Chong Lou, Art Yip, Jackie Lou, Jang Gim, Jack Soon, Quene Yip, Dock Yip and Lem On; G. Yip.

All-Stars—Bourne, Margison, Eastwood, Gibson, Speller, Thane, Chinese, Sage, C. Bassell, Campbell and Noble; Viggers.

"There Goes the Bride," the Gainsborough-British Lion release, which is being shown at the Playhouse Theatre, is so rich in amusing sequences that it is difficult to say which is the funniest. There are many who will be tickled by that incident associated with the "lith" of the pearl necklace of the hostess. The general belief is that the theft is just a prank on the part of the more high-spirited guests.

HEIRS' MOTHER TAKES STAND

Widow Who Pioneered Bella Coola With John Clayton Questioned By Lawyers

Elizabeth C. Clayton, who pioneered the Bella Coola district with her husband, the late John Clayton, and is the mother of the family of heirs to the Clayton fortune, today took the stand in the trial of the heirs against the B.A. Securities, A. E. Haynes and A. S. Innes, trustees, claiming an accounting from them and negligence in the handling of the estate, which has been in the hands of the trustees since Mr. Clayton died in 1916.

J. W. de B. Farris, K.C., counsel for the heirs, with Henry C. Hall, K.C., had Mrs. Clayton on the stand most of the morning. She was very hard of hearing and the proceedings were slowed up as her daughters had to take turns in relaying to her in words spoken close into her ear the questions from the lawyers.

Mr. Farris took the mother of the family back to 1916 when the B.A. Securities withdrew as trustees of the estate and Mr. Haynes and Mr. Innes took over the duties.

"Did you ever know that the new trustees, Mr. Haynes and Mr. Innes were not appointed by the courts?" asked Mr. Farris.

"No replied, Mrs. Clayton. —Then didn't you find that out?"

"A just since this trouble started about a year ago."

Cross-examined by H. A. Maclean, K.C., who with Clarence Darling of Vancouver, and Captain R. P. Matheson, B.C., had Mrs. Clayton on the stand most of the morning. She was very hard of hearing and the proceedings were slowed up as her daughters had to take turns in relaying to her in words spoken close into her ear the questions from the lawyers.

BICYCLING FAD HITS VICTORIA

Clock Turns Back to Gay Nineties to Provide Latest Novelty

Within a couple of weeks Victoria will be participating in the bicycling fad that has already swept Hollywood, San Francisco and Los Angeles. Turning back to the gay nineties when cycling was listed among a person's hobbies, as motoring and golf are today, California moving queens started the craze.

Jumping in on the new idea live business men put in a stock of bicycles in their stores near to park and the sport started by the film stars was taken up by others. Some enthusiasts who had never cycled since their kid days found youth again and the "for hire" men are reported to be reaping a harvest.

In Vancouver a number of firms have started a stock of bicycles to hire to those who are following California's lead and business is good. An unusual number of cyclists in Beacon Hill Park indicated Victorians are also becoming "bicycle-minded." All spare bicycles that could be hired were let out by Victoria firms during the holiday and they plan to get more in respect to the anticipated "for hire" business.

Athletics Capture Sixth Straight To Take Fourth Place

Philadelphia Club Continues Winning Streak at Expense of St. Louis

Chicago Sox In Second Position

Pittsburgh Pirates Wallop Brooklyn to Increase Margin Over Giants

It seems that Connie Mack knew what he was talking about when he said, at the opening of the American League season this spring, he could still put a pennant contender on the field this year, despite the sale of three of his best players.

The Philadelphia Athletics yesterday won their sixth straight game and have finally climbed up to fourth place in the standing. They made their final step into the first division from the American League cellar by walling out St. Louis Browns, 7 to 4, in a game out short in the sixth inning by a thunderstorm that flooded the field and started a small fire in the stands.

Rain washed out the Cleveland-Navy game and gave Chicago White Sox second place when they were kept idle at Boston. Washington Senators, previous holders of second, went down a notch when they ran into Tommy Bridges' second one-hit game of the season and lost, 5 to 1.

In the National League Pittsburgh Pirates increased their lead over New York to three games when they took a 6 to 5 ten-inning win from Brooklyn Dodgers. Cincinnati Reds meanwhile turned back the New York Giants, 3 to 1.

Chicago Cubs, after two defeats by the last-place Phillies, administered a sound 6 to 2 drubbing to their opponents. Boston and St. Louis were rained out.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Philadelphia, May 25.—Lightning combined with thunder to rain to break up the Philadelphia Athletics-St. Louis Browns ball game yesterday in the sixth inning, with the A's victors, 7 to 4, and then crashed into the right field foul line structure, and started a fire in the stand.

Fans had scrambled for cover from the right field stand when the down-pour stopped the contest. A few minutes later, a bolt of lightning struck the corrugated iron runway, which serves as a ramp to the fence on which the foul line is painted, and splintered it. The flames began almost immediately, but were almost as quickly extinguished.

St. Louis 4 5 0
Philadelphia 7 6 2
Batteries—Knoth, Hadley, Ruel; Cain, Claret, Grove and Cochran.

Washington, May 25.—The doors of baseball's hall of fame opened yesterday to Tommy Bridges, Detroit pitcher, but just as in a previous game with the Washington Senators, his dream of a perfect contest was spoiled by a single Senator hit.

The Tigers won 8 to 1. Joe Kuhel, Washington first baseman, poled a homer over the right field fence in the eighth inning, to ruin Bridges' no-hit, no-run effort.

Detroit 8 10 1
Washington 1 1 0

Victoria Boys Win Intercity Cricket

Local Colts Score Easy Victory Against Vancouver Team Here

Saturday League Men Defeat Midweek Team; Lethaby's Eleven Victors

Far superior in both batting and bowling strength, Victoria Colts had little difficulty in defeating Vancouver Juniors in the intercity cricket match played on the University school grounds yesterday, while Saturday Leaguers overcame the Wednesday players at Beacon Hill.

In the junior game Victoria declared for 200 with three wickets still standing in the first inning after Vancouver had been able to put on only 40.

Bradford and Alexander virtually equalled the mainlanders' first innings total with individual scores of 48 and 47 respectively, while Dyson contributed a 35 and Sweeney a 28, not out, for Victoria. Robertson with 18 and Adie with 10 also reached double figures for the Victorians.

McKenzie, captain, with 13, was the high man for the visitors, while he and Russell, who batted out 10, were the only pair to reach double figures.

Alexander took six Vancouver wickets for 19 runs in fourteen overs during the first mainland innings. Sweeney took three for 8 in eight overs.

CONGRATULATED

Following the match, an all-day engagement of the team members were guests of the Victoria and District Cricket Association at a banquet in the Windermere Hotel. In the absence of Dyson, Victoria captain, the Cameron Cup was presented by H. W. Alexander to Poyntz, Victoria vice-captain.

P. C. Payne, president of the association, Mr. Alexander and Mr. Dale of Vancouver, all congratulated the boys on their showings.

At Beacon Hill, N. P. Fite, Freeman and Bosson carried the brunt of the attack and defence which sent the Saturday League through to a close victory.

The Saturday players put on 65 for five wickets before the lunch interval, and Pite and Bosson made a good stand after the rest to raise the score to 115 before being separated.

The inning closed with the weekenders holding a total of 126. Pender and Gibson took three wickets each and Geoffrey Newman two.

Doug Fletcher scored 39 for the Wednesday League.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

Why Does Sixteen-year-old Want to Run Away From Good Home?—Take Pity on Dependents' Pride and Honor Her Weaknesses, Urges Dorothy Dix—Cruel Mother Who Pinches Baby

DEAR MISS DIX—My life at home has been very miserable and I have decided to run away. I am sixteen years old. PLAIN REDS.

I also have a letter from this girl's mother in which she says that she is broken-hearted over her daughter being unhappy at home and so dissatisfied that she is thinking of running away, and she doesn't know why this should be the case because both she and the girl's father love her dearly and have made many sacrifices to give her every advantage that they possibly could. But the girl won't study at school. She won't be interested in her violin lessons and wouldn't practice. She won't help with the housework. She won't do anything but moan and pity herself, and the poor distracted mother doesn't know what to do about it.

Answer—I would say to the mother not to worry herself sick by taking the situation tragically. Laugh it off if she can. If not, at least ignore it. For what else the girl is that she is sixteen and she will get over that and come to her senses in a little time. It is a very common thing for adolescent girls to be morbid and to dramatize themselves as figures of woe.

Very often they imagine themselves as foster-children who have been stolen from millionaire parents of high social position. They think that is why they are so superior to their parents and their older brothers and sisters. And why washing dishes and making beds is so repugnant to them. Very often they consider themselves mistreated, and regard every mild reproach as a deadly affront, and they have a perfectly grand time going on oracles of tears.

Now these morbid girls are bound to have an audience, and the more they can worry their families and the more mother pets them and tries to amuse and entertain them, the more hysterical they get. If the best home remedy is just not to be interested in them, there is no point in going about with the expression of an Early Christian martyr if no one apparently notices that you are not grinning like a Cheshire cat. There is no encouragement in going on a hunger fast if no one comments on your lack of appetite. There is no thrill in threatening to run away from home if instead of mother beseeching you with tears not to leave she remarks that perhaps a change would do you good.

You see when you cut up you have to have an audience and if everybody else in the family goes about their business without paying any attention to you, you simply can't stage your little show.

To the girl I would say: Don't be a little nitwit. Wake up and try to see yourself as you are and then you will realize that your unhappiness is not the result of your surroundings, but comes from your secret sense of failure in not having taken advantage of the opportunities of education that your parents have given you. It is your conscience pricking you that makes you miserable.

Everybody is miserable who is lazy and selfish and self-centred, and who is cheating on a debt of honor, and that is what you are doing. Your parents have made every sacrifice to send you to school and you won't study. You won't help your mother with the work and bear your part of the family burdens, and so you know you are a quitter. That is what hurts. But you are too much of a coward to take your punishment, so you blame other people for it. Just realize that and face about. Study hard at school. Be mother's little helper. And you will find that you have chased away the glooms, and that you are happy instead of miserable, and there is no place like home, sweet home.

As for running away, no matter what sort of home you have, you would be jumping out of the frying pan into the fire. It would mean that you would have no place to sleep at night, that you would have nothing to eat except the scraps you begged at back doors, that you would be thrown in the company of hoboes, and that in all probability you would be arrested as a vagrant before you had even been arrested before, and thrown into jail and kept there until your father could come for you. The worst home on earth is heaven compared to what a girl has to go through who runs away from it.

There is no romance to it, no thrilling adventure, no noble youth with soulful eyes and a big bank account who will come along at the critical moment and rescue you and take you off to a palace to live. There is nothing in it but dirt and degradation and remorse and the gutter.

Don't be fool enough even to think about such a thing. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—When people have to make their homes with someone else, why are they difficult to get along with? Why do they develop such an extreme sensitiveness? Why can't they realize that others in the family need some consideration, too? Why must one tread as if on eggs in dealing with them? Why must they have special invitations to join family activities? Why must they wear the air of a martyr? In short, why can't they make the burden they are to others easier to bear? ANSWER IF YOU CAN.

Answer—I can't answer it. I gave up trying to answer the conundrum long ago. The only explanation I can suggest is that dependence is a shame that cuts so deeply into the soul of a man or woman that the wound always aches, they are always conscious of it and always looking out for those about them to hurt them afresh, either accidentally or on purpose.

Hence they set up sensitiveness as a sort of defence mechanism and spread their feelings all over the place so that it is impossible to move without stepping on them. It is their way of getting the attentions that they crave and making themselves important in the family circle. And that is pitifully childish, but it is pitiful all the same.

The other members of the household who belong in it by rights, who are paying the bills, doing the work, keeping it a prosperous, going concern, do not have to be handled with gloves. They give and take, assert their rights, express their desires, do not think of being hurt or offended if their tastes are not considered, or they are not consulted about everything.

But poor old Aunt Lou, who is a pensioner, will drink her coffee unsweetened and weep for days over the way she is treated if somebody inadvertently forgets to pass her the sugar. Grandma says her own children don't want her and she had better be dead, if she isn't specially asked to see every stranger who calls. Grandpa refuses to speak for a week at a time if he isn't consulted about things that he knows nothing what ever about.

Of course, all of this does make those who are dependent upon us harder to get along with, but their lot is so forlorn, they are so pitiable, that those of us who do not have to find out how steep are the stairs in another man's house, as the Spanish proverb puts it, may well bear with them patiently and take the trouble to humor their little weaknesses. DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—Do you think it is brutal to pinch a child to make it mind in the presence of guests? He cries, but they think he is crying because I scolded him. My mother says I am a snake to do it. She is angry at me every time I do it, she loses her head about it. C. N. O.

Answer—I do not see how any mother could be so cruel as to bruise the tender flesh of a little child by pinching it. You are living too late. You belong in the days of the Inquisition and would have made a grand torturer. I don't believe it is necessary to beat up-children to make them behave. If you will establish the habit of obedience of children in everyday life, you will not have to pinch them to make them mind in public. DOROTHY DIX.
